Character Designs

Designing a chocolate box cover

The name of the product came first. One of the things I learnt was that some fictional products get their names from street signs or unnoticed locations. I came across a couple of names from street or road signs which I thought would work for the name of the chocolates or fruit-n-veg store:

- Gotire.
- Henstaff.
- Tremy.
- Farde.
- Campbell.
- Talbot
- Denver.
- Peterson Seper-Eley
- Josty
- Crowley
- Waterton
- Wicked
- Picton

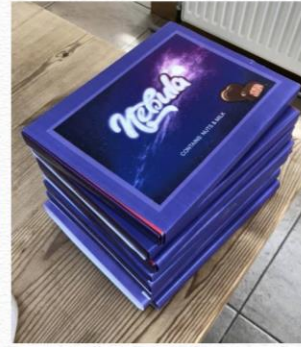

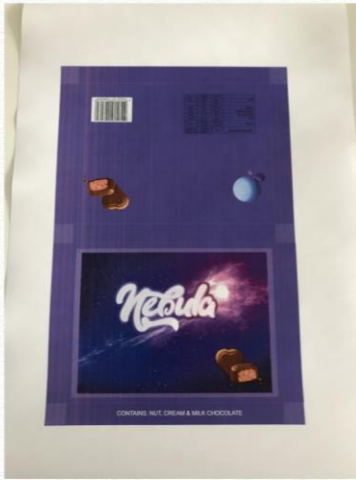

Some products are named after existing products but with a slightly alternative name. So I decided to name the chocolates after the existing “Galaxy” bar but using either the name “Nebula” or “Mercury”. In the end, the art department team decided on the name Nebula.

Storyboarding

The Entire storyboard process for "The Stolen Kingdom" - my uni project

I like to produce my storyboards by rough sketching them on paper or post-it notes, before fine-tuning them with pro markers or digitally.
